The past month has witnessed consid-erable rainfall in this section, probably more than during August of any year in the past four. The orange crop, while not so large as last year, by fully one-third, is nevertheless developing well. Some groves are showing a large amount of fruit from June bloom.

Probably the most important real es-tate transfer made in this place in many years was closed this week, and where-by K. Borson secures 835 feet on south Prospect street and running to Lake Crescent. The property was purchased of Hon. James R. Howe of Brooklyn, N. Y., through the M. H. Read agency in this city. The land purchased by Mr. Borson commences with the south line of Mr. C. Lyon's place and extends 835 feet along Prospect street. It is one of the most highly lake front properties here, and ideal for residence purposes. It is understood that it is Mr. Borson's purpose to erect a handsome residence on a part of this newly acquired property.

NOT A TRADITION.

Editor PALATKA NEWS:
If I understand the word "tradition," it means when all eye witnesses are dead and the incident or action is only known as remembered by those to whom it was related by those having seen it.

The above being true, Mr. James R. Hill would have to wait until Mr. James W. Long of Crescent City and I have passed to the great beyond before his "Legend of Lake Crescent," in your issue of March 25th, 1910, could be con-sidered in the least traditional, so far, at any rate as relates to the sinking of the Confederate boat in Haw Creek.

The steamer St. Marys was the only boat sunk in Haw Creek during the war time, and therefore I take it that Mr. Hill had her in mind.

I will give you the story of the St. Marys as we have been on the ground at the time I know it.

At the commencement of the civil war the St. Marys was plying between Palatka and Savannah. At the time the southern ports were blockaded she was, perhaps, purposely left on the St. Johns river for the reason that there were a greater number of out-of-the-way places in which she might hide in safety from the enemy. Finally, however, it was decided upon as the safer way to take her as far up Haw Creek as she could be safely run and there sunk to lie till such time as it was possible to raise her.

About one year after the sinking it was decided (whether by the Confed-erate government or the owners I do not know) to raise her, take off all the upper decking and load her with bales of cotton so as to make her as strongly defensive as possible, slip her out of the river at night and take the cotton to some foreign port, most likely Nassau, N. P. Any way that had a crowd of men go and raise her, fix her up in good shape and take her to or near Jack-sonville, when she was loaded with cotton preparatory to "running the blockade."

Whether by information or by force I do not know, but the Yankees came up the river, gave her chase up Black Creek, where they captured her, so far as I have ever heard, without the firing of a gun.

Of course the cotton was confiscated and the boat left till the close of the war, when the cotton was sold and she was rebuilt and called her the "Nick King" in honor of the man who ran, if not owned her.

It has been a long while since I visited the place where she was sunk in Haw Creek, but to the best of my memory, it is about three miles from the lake. I have no doubt but what some of the old piles are yet to be seen.

So far as the bones are concerned, I am sorry to unmix them and leave those of previous wars to moulder and decay alone, but as a natural conclusion there was no battle fought there at the time of the sinking of the St. Marys. There could be no bones to decay.

And another thing let me add: There never was a battle of any kind, nor even a hostile shot fired on Dunn's Lake dur-ing the civil war. The nearest approach to it was a skirmish at Braddock's farm, two miles south of where Crescent City now is, between Capt. J. J. Dickinson and the provost marshal of St. Augustine who had come out with a company of men and wagons to get a load of seed cotton. However, that was not the story and need not have been mentioned.

W. H. Sample Dead.
Expired Suddenly at Asheville, N. C., Where He Had Gone Two Weeks Ago.

The following concerning the sudden death of Wm. H. Sample, a well-known and highly esteemed winter visitor at this place, is taken from an Albany, N. Y. paper of last Saturday, the 20th inst:

A telegram received at the home of William H. Sample, 133 Lancaster street, at 1 o'clock this morning, announced his sudden death at Asheville, N. C. The family is still awaiting details. Mr. Sample went south on a vacation two weeks ago and although not in the most robust health was by no means ill. Edward R. Sample and Miss Adaline Sample were the members of the family at home, and immediately summoned William H. Sample, Jr., from Brant Lake, where he with Mrs. Sample has been spending his vacation. The sons this morning telegraphed to have the body sent on at once.

Mr. Sample was head of the firm of W. H. Sample & Sons. He was born here in 1848, and was educated in the public schools. He married in 1871 Miss Adeline Munn, who died two and a half years ago. He is survived by a mother, Mrs. Margaret Sample, of this city; two sons, William H., Jr., and Edward R.; three daughters, Mrs. Anthony E. Steere of Amsterdam, Mrs. R. C. Doerfer, Miss Adaline Sample of this city; and two brothers, Hiram and Ran-som, and three grandchildren, E. Burton Sample, Reynold H. Doerfer and Eliza-beth M. Steere.

Mr. Sample was an enthusiastic fisher-man. He was well known for his frater-nal connections, being a member of Wadsworth lodge No. 117, F. and A. M.; Capital City chapter No. 242, R. A. M.; DeWitt Clinton council No. 22, K. & S. M.; Temple Commandery No. 2, K. T., and Cyprus temple, A. O. N. S. K.

If your child is pale and sickly, picks at his food, starts in the sleep and cries the while, while sleeping, it is a sure sign of worms. A remedy for these parasites will be found in WHITE'S CREAM VERMIFUGE. It not only cleans out the worms, but it restores health and cheerfulness. Price 25c per bottle. Sold by Ackerman-Stewart and J. H. Haughton.

Tennyson's Taciturnity.
Several stories are told of Tennyson's thoughtless speeches. "What fish is this?" he once asked his hostess where he was dining. "Whiting," she replied. "The meanest fish there is," he remarked, quite unconscious that he could have wounded any one's feel-ings.

Yet his kindness of heart was such that when his partridge was afterward given him almost raw he ate steadily through it for fear his hostess might be vexed.

On one occasion Tennyson was very rude to Mrs. Brotherton, a neighbor at Freshwater. The next day he came to her house with a great cabbage under each arm.

"I heard you like these, so I brought them," he said genially. It was his idea of a peace offering.

Plucked Triumph Out of Trouble.
An Indianapolis retail merchant re-cently took advantage of an accident which happened to his store.

A runaway trolley car had crashed into his show window, wrecking it. While the crowd of people who had been attracted by the collision were still gathered about the front of the store the enterprising retailer came struggling through the wreckage and placed a large card bearing the words "All cars stop at Blanks'" in a promi-nent place. The effect was forthcom-ing—System.

If you feel "blue," "No account," lazy, you need a good cleaning out. HERBINE is the right thing for that purpose. It stimulates the liver, tones up the stomach and purifies the bow-els. Price 50c. Sold by Ackerman-Stewart and J. H. Haughton.

The Death Rate.
Thirty-three millions of people die annually. This is equal to 60,440 deaths per day, 3,767 per hour and 62 per minute, or one in less than every second of time. One-fourth of the people born into the world die before arriving at the age of seven years; one-half die before reaching the age of seventeen. The average duration of human life is about thirty-eight years. Of 10,000 persons one attains the age of 100 years, one out of 500 reaches the age of ninety years, and out of 100 only one will live to be sixty—New York American.

The Lucky Party.
A gentleman was complimenting a pretty young lady to the presence of his wife.

"It's lucky I did not meet Miss Hop-kins before I married you, my dear."

"Well, yes; it is extremely for her," was the rejoinder.

If you sit in a cool draft when you are heated and get a stiff neck or lame back, you will be looking for something that will ease the pain. Fix your mind on BALLARD'S SNOW LIN-IMENT and don't be talked out of it because it is the best pain relieving liniment you can get anywhere. Price 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle. Sold by Ackerman-Stewart Drug Co. and J. H. Haughton.
